

Activity Based Learning Files

From September 2007 a new type of activity is being added. These are written originally by Janet Rieger, though others are invited to contribute.

While Activity based leading has been introduced into the Pathfinder program, this has not been done with Adventurers. These items are an attempt to correct this shortage. At the moment in some cases the same activity based learning section is shown in several classes but we are hoping the eventually have a separate one for each requirement.

These two activities are being introduced via these icons.

This icon  is for readiness activities which should be used to introduce a requirement.

This icon  is for application activities which are to be used to make the requirements meaningful in the every day life of the Adventurer, after the requirement has been completed..

Each activity will have a section about the equipment needed, which will need to be prepared in advance; a description of how to run the activity; and suggested debriefing questions. For more on debriefing see "Debreifing" item in the main menu.